retro pop, folk, alternative, psychedelic folk, singer songwriter, beatlesque

September 24th - 1st single "Love Of Life"

October 8th - 2nd single "Mama Nature"

October 22nd - FULL ALBUM RELEASE

Marla & David Celia's sophomore, yet unreleased album Indistinct Chatter will be out on October 22, 2021. With duet vocal harmonies in the foreground, they dive through progressive chord changes, elaborate arrangements and round it off with well-crafted ballads. There aren't any genre borders. The lyrics circle around our lives in the present, during times of overproduction, capitalism, lack of compassion for one another and the desire to see change. Ironically, some songs written before the global pandemic alluded to the impending doom humanity is afflicting on itself.

Target songs

Love of life

We feel the mellow desire to enjoy life to the fullest. Sometimes though, the dark side tries to creep in but we must let it pass. If you let the love in, it can carry you through life. Reminiscent of the Talking heads but with some George Harrison flavour.

Mama Nature

The world is still turning but with more of a population than ever before. We will have to face the hard policies that "Mama nature" confronts us with if we keep expecting to manufacture and use goods to no end. The stompy British-style beat of this song resembles mother nature walking taller than the skyscrapers.

Clowns Everywhere

As with other themes on this album, Clowns are everywhere over-producing and mass-manufacturing. On the other end, people are mass-buying from their couch. Unthinkable amounts of food are being tossed, not because it's old but rather to make space for newer, even more desirable goods - A decadent circle of spoiled comfort. All portrayed in this 70's feel, psychedelic Beatles/XTC-esque soundscape.
